The Gumbuz at Seringapatam is like any other Muzrai institution depending upon public charity and other unsteady sources of income besides Government grant. The expenditure of the institution requires to be regulated according to its annual income. The employment of the staff in such institutions has therefore to be treated as purely temporary and not entitled to any pension or gratuity benefits. The grant of bonus or gratuity in this case is not covered by any rules, but is purely a matter of grace within discretion of Government.

In para 5 of his letter the Muzrai Commissioner states that a bonus of Rs 500/- was sanctioned from Gumbus Funds to the previous Nazir. When recommending this grant to the previous Nazir, the then Muzrai Commissioner stated that that case would not be quoted as a precedent on future occasions. (Vide Muzrai Commissioner's letter No.C.38/23-24 dated 22-5-24).

A pension or gratuity as proposed is not admissible under the rules and is not desirable or acceptable for the reasons stated in para 1 of the Comptroller's note above. The precedent quoted in support is very old and the gratuity there was sanctioned as a very special case on the assurance of the Muzrai Commissioner that it would not be quoted as a precedent. I would therefore say that a gratuity need not be sanctioned in this case outside the rules. If it is however considered absolutely necessary, the Muzrai Commissioner's recommendation may be sanctioned as a special case.
